once you send the money you can t get it back or dispute the transaction venmo says it is for friends and family only and should not be used with strangers you can request money but people don t have to pay back many people use venmo on virtual yard sales but it is a risk to take because venmo won t investigate fraud one of my biggest complaints about venmo is that a bank account can only be linked to one user so my wife can only access our joint bank account if someone sends me money i have to send it to my wife first before we can deposit the money he sent me some pictures of girls holding up signs that said walker paid me 1 500 euro or walker is a real sugar daddy written on them however he quickly unsent these messages after sending them this part of the story remains somewhat of a mystery to me funds are automatically debited from your checking account and typically deposited into the recipient s checking account within seconds pay anyone transactions will be monitored and may be held delayed or blocked if the transfer could result in fraud or another form of financial harm sometimes instant transfers can be delayed if you receive some or even all of your business income through a p2p payment platform it is best to set up a business account otherwise your business and personal transactions will be intermingled making it tougher to separate business and personal payments to use zelle you link your bank account to the app if your bank doesn t support zelle you can download the zelle app and link it to your bank account then you can send money to others who have linked their bank account to the app
